Contractor Kahoe's Son Buried in the Havemeyer Excavation.

Fallen Walls, Floods of Water and "L" Posts Undermined.

Remarkable Landslide on Church Street Early This Morning.

Young John Kehoe, son of the wealthy building contractor of the same name, was killed in a shocking monner in the big excavation at Church, Dey and Cortlandt streets early this morning. He was superintending a gang of a dezen Italian laborers who twere working by electric light on the foundations of the new Havemeyer Office Building, when tons of brick and debris fell upon him, breaking a water main and bringing on a flood also. The work of removing the debra of the buildings torn down several weeks ago was nearly completed, and the whole space be-tween Dey and Cortlandt streets, and fconting on Church street, had been cleared out.

The excavation was ully twenty feet deep. and on the Church street side lo se stones and bricks from the demolished buildings had been plied up on the sidewalk along the edge of the brick wall to a height of ten feet or more. On the curb at about the centre of the Church street side of the block was a city hydrant supplied by a six-inch iron pipe from the Croton main. For a day or two past it has been noticed that water was trickling through the foundation wall just opposite this point, and there was fear that the water main bad burst and was leasing.

About 2 o'clock this morning Mr. Kehoe went to invest gate this leak leaving the other at Forsyih and Canal streets. men at work at further end of the excavation. Just what he old will never be known, for the snot was in comparative darkness, and the young min was hidden from view behind a heap of stones piled up in the middle of the excivation.

He has only been there a few minutes when a crash was heard that made the ground treme le and threw the workmen into a panic. About forty feet of the wall on the Caurch air ctable and auddenly caved in, the heavy moss of bricks, stone and sand falling directly tron the young man and burying him from

It had also carried away the street lamp and the hydrant and cumped them into the excavation, and left bare and upprotected the foundslions of two of the L road supports.

The rush of water watch followed the falling of the wall poured from the broken hydrant pipe into the excavation. The stream shot out a horizontal direction for several yards with terrific force, and within a few memonis the estervation was flooded.

As soon as they had recovered from their fright the Italians under the direction Foreman Day, who was misting Mr. Kanoe, tegan to scaren for the body of the r forth ate young man-

The skell had been literally cieft in two, one laudi Judg mus., the body was torn and lacerated, and the rient arm was nearly form from its socket. A n essenger was at once sent to the father of young Kehoe, who lives at 522 East Seventeenth street, and the old man arrived at the station half an hour afterwards. His grief at his son's snocking death was pitiful to witness, and ne could not restrain an exciamation of horror when he saw the man-

He said that he had particularly requests night, but that the young man was auxlous to push the work as rapidly as possible, and insisted upon going to superintend the opera-night since the work had become and he could not keep him away from it. As soon as a permit could be constant from Coroner Hanly, Undertaker Maxey, of 225 East Eighteenth the pillars, which was left entirely exposed by the caving in of the afreet, was broken and crumbling at the top.

The collect think that the hydrant pipe must have been leaking for several days and thoroughly saturated the ground behind the foundation wait. This, together wint the great weight or the piles of brick placed upon the sinewalk, so weaken dithe old wall that it was bound to give way at the slightest snock.

The affect is in a very unsafe condition, and it is feared in a other maria of the said juding cellar wall may give way at any time. The place from which the body of young E hoe was taken is only a few set from the line of the wall. He had evidently no time to get out of the way when it fell.
